Transcript Back Matter

Each course is assigned credit in semester hours. One semester hour is defined as fifty (50) contact minutes and, where applicable, three hours per week of practical or laboratory work throughout a fifteen-week semester.

Grade Letters and Credit Points

| Numerical Value | Letter Grade | Meaning   | Index Number |
|-----------------|--------------|-----------|--------------|
| 90-100          | A            | Excellent | 4.0          |
| 80-89           | B            | Good      | 3.0          |
| 70-79           | C            | Average   | 2.0          |
| 60-69           | D            | Poor      | 1.0          |
| Below 60        | F            | Failure   | 0.0          |

Academic Implications

- Grades of D, I, F, AB, DR, or NG are considered deficiencies in a student's academic status at the university.
- A grade of D is unsatisfactory. A student must re-enroll in the course within the next two consecutive semesters and earn a grade of C or better to earn the course credits where university policy requires it.
- A grade of I indicates that a student completed a substantial part of the course with satisfactory performance but could not complete all requirements. It may be converted to a letter grade when requirements are met within the next two consecutive semesters.
- A grade of F represents failure. The student must re-enroll in the course and earn a grade of C or better to earn course credits.
- A grade of AB indicates that the student did not take the final examination and provided documented evidence for that inability.
- A grade of DR indicates that the student exceeded the three excused absences allowed and must re-enroll to earn course credits.
- A grade of NG indicates that the student registered for the course but failed to officially withdraw or attend classes.
- A grade of W indicates an official withdrawal approved through the Office of the Registrar after consultation with the instructor and department chair and/or dean.

Mention and honor thresholds are to be confirmed by the Registrar before final transcript publication.
